

Weekday Truck Speeds on Interstates from January 2019 through August 2021

Average weekday truck speeds on interstates from January 2021 through August 2021 were about 5 mph higher compared to the same months in 2019, which resulted in better mobility due to impacts from the pandemic. However, speeds were lower than the months from April 2020 to July 2020 when interstates experienced some of their highest speeds due to the onset of the pandemic and statewide stay-at-home orders.